On March 6, 1971, International Women's Day, marchers turned LEFT ON PEARL and took over a Harvard University building at 888 Memorial Drive, Cambridge, declaring it a Women's Center. The women occupied the building for ten days. This action transformed participant's lives and sparked the creation of many, still vibrant, community-based projects. LEFT ON PEARL highlights this significant, but hidden, chapter in Second Wave feminist history. Folks in the film (i.e. the occupiers) and those who worked on the film will be present for discussion afterward.
